

This is a placeholder

The data set used is the same as in Linear Regression where the data exploration was done in depth. So this section is just a place holder and the content is identical to the data exploration lesson in Linear Regression. Should we use a different data set for Logistic Regression in future, this is where the data exploration will go.